

Review of: "Persimmon Preservation: Navigating Tradition, Innovation, and Sustainability for a Holistic Future"

Maria Angelova-Romova<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Plovdiv

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is well written, accompanied by a fairly complete and up-to-date bibliography. All references cited in this manuscript should be written in a unified way according to the format of the journal. There is a significant discrepancy in citations – in the text, there are authors who are missing in the references and authors who are in the references but missing in the text.

The manuscript covers processing and storage aspects, so a title change may be considered. It would be appropriate to summarize all processing techniques in a table or figure for clarity. The conclusion is written with a lot of redundancies; it can be considered for reduction.