

Review of: "Skilling Up for Tomorrow's Cities: The Workforce of Smart Cities"

Dorin Beu¹

¹ Technical University of Cluj-Napoca

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

A very good paper about occupational profiles that will be needed in the next years based on the New Green Deal and decarbonisation of the cities. In fact, few university studies and master's programmes are ready to deliver such profiles, and many people working in the city council staff would need to update their knowledge.

Some of my initial comments were already mentioned by other reviewers and are already solved, making my review simpler.

I think that the conclusions are too short after such a good paper. For some municipalities, it will not be possible to have all these specialists, so some of them need to merge several occupational profiles.

Another future direction is the cost for municipalities of hiring such highly educated persons.