The article made a very interesting read, especially as the authors tried very well to speak to the audience. However, there are some concerns in the paper that must be addressed. The presentation structure of the article is quite strange to me. I don't know the citation and referencing styles adopted in the paper. There is a whole lot of mix-up in citation. For example, you see a sign of continuous numbering and a mention of authors. The referencing is also anything but APA. The methodology is again very strange. There is a strong need for English language editing.

I recommend that the authors should align their paper presentation with the journal's format by visiting your website to get the correct guidelines.
