

Review of: "Determinants of Women Entrepreneurs' Business Performance: Evidence from Micro and Small-Scale Enterprises in Arba Minch Town, Southern Ethiopia"

Fachrurazi Fachrurazi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article effectively highlights the importance of women entrepreneurs in economic development, especially in developing countries like Ethiopia, but additionally, consider providing more details on the characteristics of the sample, such as age, education, and years of experience, to offer a comprehensive understanding of the study population. Overall, the study is clear and relevant to the context of women entrepreneurs in micro-and small-scale enterprises in Arba Minch Town, southern Ethiopia.