

Review of: "Decolonisation of Health in East Africa: Opinion Piece"

Elijah Marangu

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Thank you for the opportunity to review this paper.

To begin with, I urge a complete re-think of the title, as a reader, I struggled to see the relevance of the title chosen for this opinion paper to its contents, at worst, it is cynical to think collaborating in publishing videos and journal articles is panacea for colonial legacy and its ills.

Decolonising health is crucial, but a far more complex endeavour than what the authors posit in their paper, none of the initiatives discussed in the opinion paper has potential to address historical and systemic inequities that have arisen from colonialism.

Suggestion:

- The article has merits of an initiative that showcases mutual collaboration in medical education that acknowledges diversity
- Title can be revised to be more aligned to the contents of the article, and not a topic that is the flavour of the month