

Review of: "Assessing the Impact of COVID-19 on Food Consumption Preferences"

Khadija Shams

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The nature of the study is purely descriptive. And it seems more like a research report than a proper research article. Second, the authors should explicitly differentiate between basic food items like milk eggs etc vs the luxurious food items like fish meat etc and then make comparative analysis. Second there should be explicit explanation and reasons behind the preferred choices during the pandemic and there should be information regarding the preferences/consumption before the pandemic and after the pandemic to have a clear full picture.