Dear authors,

Thank you for submitting the manuscript, and I appreciate the interest and desire to write the presented article.

However, there are issues that need to be addressed in the manuscript:

For the photobiomodulation treatment, the source of the scheme should be specified, or explain how they arrived at that specific treatment.

The discussion is definitively too short, and there should be more references in this section. This is a crucial factor, and it needs to be addressed to improve the form and value of your manuscript. The discussion is the key section in this type of article, and authors must compare and discuss all the matters written in the previous sections. Only then is it possible to write down the conclusions and complete the paper in a correct manner.
