

Review of: "Selection of an engineering institution: Students' perceptions of choice characteristics and suitability under the COVID-19 pandemic"

Abdul Aziz Abdul Raman<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universiti Malaya

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is a relevant and timely study for the readership. The methodology and format are systematically done. However, the article is too lengthy and written more for local context and not for an international readership. I find the discussions to be largely statistical and relationships with the practical issues on the ground are not critically established. The practical take home message from the manuscript is not strong.