

Review of: "Acacia pycnantha gum exudates recognised as a traditional food in two countries may have economic potential"

Suelen Alves Vianna¹

¹ Agronomical Institute of Campinas

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is intriguing as it evaluates a plant species that, besides its traditional use, demonstrates significant economic potential across various applications. Nevertheless, it could be enhanced for clarity and informativeness by incorporating comparison tables that juxtapose the featured species with other gum-producing varieties. Additionally, the inclusion of photos and a more comprehensive characterization of traditional uses, along with exploration of potential industrial applications, would further enrich the content.