First of all, I appreciate having considered myself as a reviewer of such an important and current article.

I extend my congratulations for this article that reveals the reality of these highly vulnerable groups, and their expected approach by the corresponding authorities.

I only have two recommendations:

1. Perhaps one should take into account, for the interpretation of the statistically significant difference, not only the value of  $p$ , but also the OR interval, which does not include the unit...
2. I think that the bibliography should be updated, since it is a subject that is currently widely studied worldwide.

After this, the publication of this article is recommended.
