Thank you for inviting me to review this paper. I found it insightful and intellectually stimulating.

It is well written and clear to follow. I enjoyed reading it and can see that the key concepts are mentioned here.

As I was reading it, I was wondering if the author had some questions to ask the reader at the start or to guide the paper throughout? It was definitely a thought provoking paper but there was much covered and I wondered if the conclusions could be made clearer at the end. It is stated that 'with few exceptions, scholars across the disciplines who have examined cosmopolitanism and citizenship are yet to come to terms with its educational significance.' It would have been good to end more clearly on the educational significance of this paper going forward.

Thank you for letting me read and comment on your paper.
