

Review of: "Agile Learning: An Innovative Curriculum for Educators"

Małgorzata Gawlik-Kobylińska

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper presents an interesting approach to learning and teaching. It is related to project activities. However, it should be noted that the issue of the agile approach in education was described in the literature. For this reason, the paper needs a sound analysis of previous studies in this field and a clear indication of the gap. It is a good point that the authors showed a landscape of approaches related to agile education. However, if they concentrate on the agile education concept, they could reveal what needs to be added to this topic.