Review of: "The Consequences of Political and Economic Choices: Exploring Disaster Vulnerability with the Structure, Resource, and Behaviour Change model (SRAB)"

Hung Bui Viet

1 Ho Chi Minh City University of Science

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper's content is very interested. Because it concerned with the root causes leading the advantage and disadvantage matters from the policy to natural events. Unfortunately, the article made an error when using small area problems to capture and prove its statement to be true for the larger area (all Delta region). Especially, when the scope of the study extends to national development policy. With the economic development policies of region or country, the strategical policies always based on the suitability such as “win-win” and “sharing cost” methods. So, it is a cause to make the paper to be a little scientific and real significant.