

Review of: "Neoliberalism, Strong State and Democracy"

Luz Dary Ramirez Franco<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de Valencia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I agree with many of the comments about the paper, a thorough review of theoretical approaches is always relevant for the social sciences.

On the other hand, I would like to stress that it would be of great relevance and enrichment for the article to present the relevance of the topic to current events. For example, why talk about the concept of neo-liberalism today, when there is an interest in renewing the world political and economic order? or,

How can the paper contribute to the discussion that neoliberalism and especially everything related to globalisation is coming full circle?

Will this international governance of which the paper speaks remain in place even if many countries are, given the current situation, driven to protectionism of national production?