Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors could consider conducting primary research to supplement the secondary data used in the paper. This could involve surveys, interviews, or focus group discussions with stakeholders in the housing sector.

2. The authors should provide a clear implementation strategy for their recommendations. This could include identifying potential barriers to implementation and strategies for overcoming them.
3. The paper could be strengthened by incorporating a theoretical framework to guide the analysis and discussion. This would not only provide a clear structure for the paper, but also enhance its academic rigor.
