It is clear that the presentation is part of a research study and no effort has been taken to project it as an academic article. Sections of the study have been converted into a paper without critically considering the important elements of writing an article from a thesis or dissertation. The paper keeps referring the "this chapter" or in "the previous chapter" which is not a good reflection or ethical projection of proper academic writing. I also noted that, although there is reference to research methodology in the abstract, there is nothing in the actual paper on outlining the research methodology, data analysis, and so on.
