

Review of: "[Review Article] A Comprehensive Overview on Pharmacological and Therapeutic Insights of Solanum nigrum Linn"

Yulian Voynikov¹

¹ Medical University of Sofia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The Introduction section is written in good English, comprehensive, and well structured!

The figures presenting the 9 “most prevalent and significant phytochemicals” should be formatted uniformly; at the time of writing this review, some are skewed/distorted.

Sections 3 and 4 are structured well!

Each study is presented in a separate paragraph, making it easy for readers to distinguish between them. The format for presenting each study is consistent throughout the text. This consistency helps readers to quickly identify key information such as the authors, year of publication, methodology, and findings for each study. Each study is summarized succinctly, providing enough detail to convey the main points without overwhelming the reader with unnecessary information. This demonstrates academic rigor and integrity in referencing the work of other researchers. The sequence of information follows a logical progression, starting with the description of the study, followed by details of the methodology and findings. This logical flow aids comprehension and facilitates understanding of the research presented.

Moreover, very neat and informative tables are presented for patents and formulations!

Overall, the article presents great merit!