

Review of: "Biological Parenthood and Reproductive Technologies"

Ludmila Jurkowski

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I agree with the other reviewers' comments. The topic is indeed interesting for debate, but the article appears to resemble more of a column expressing a personal opinion rather than a scientific paper. It lacks a clear scientific structure and consistency. Furthermore, the assumptions made in the article about a particular course of action are not adequately supported by a clear evidentiary basis.

To improve the article I would suggest the following: Organize the article with a scientific structure, try to maintain a more objective tone by using third-person perspective. Ensure that all assumptions and claims are supported by relevant scientific evidence and proper citations.