

Review of: "Longevity of Electric Vehicle Operations"

Patrik Richnák¹

¹ University of Economics in Bratislava

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article deals with a current topic that is being discussed all over the world. The elaboration of the article is only generally theoretical. It lacks an in-depth analysis that would concentrate on the chosen problem, which would also be approached with data. The literature review is not in-depth. There is a lack of cross-comparison and clear figures or tables that summarize the theoretical research. For this topic, it is also important to provide selected examples from practice or to support the information with data in the form of research. This section is not represented in the article at all. If the article were to be published as a scientific article, it would have to be comprehensively revised and supplemented with a practical part.