Your observations are insightful! Here's how you could structure your review:

1. Lack of clarity regarding the sample size in the initial presentation of results. Emphasize the importance of providing this information upfront for transparency and reliability.
2. Proofreading and data validation are essential before publication to ensure accuracy.
3. Note that while the article reports generally positive attitudes towards inter-professional collaboration, the presentation of results lacks depth and conciseness. Recommend streamlining the presentation by focusing on key findings and avoiding unnecessary repetition or overly detailed descriptions in the results and discussion sections.
