Review of: "Rheumatology"

Fatih Mehmet Kelesoglu

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Rheumatology is a medical science that investigates inflammatory diseases affecting bones, muscles, joints, or internal organs, resulting from the body's immune system attacking itself, whether by known or unknown triggers. Contrary to popular belief, rheumatological diseases do not only occur in the musculoskeletal system. For example, cerebral vasculitis affecting the brain's blood vessels is one of the best examples, where the primary affected organ is the brain.