

Review of: "The Shortage of Professionals/Skilled Workers: Its Impact on the Inflation Rate in the Eurozone"

Chee Hong Law¹

¹ Universiti Sains Malaysia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article is somehow interesting. I only have a few very technical suggestions, and I listed them below:

1. The sentences should be edited to improve their readability,
2. The reference style should be done properly.
3. All formulae or equations should be numbered, and all related symbols must be explained right after the formulae or equations are presented.
4. I kind of disagree that committing to the omitted variable bias should be ignored, as argued in the end of section 3.
The authors could augment the inflation model by adding interest rate or GDP.
5. The results presentation is too vague, and more information should be given for a more constructive results discussion.