

Review of: "Agritourism: a source for socio-economic transformation in developing economies"

Rossana Santos¹

¹ Universidade da Madeira

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Qeios ID: DXTYIG

Agritourism: a source for socio-economic transformation in developing economies

Promise Zvavahera, Farai Chigora

Comments:

The study has potential to be developed at a level of practical applications and implications. In this scope, the methodology must be developed in accordance. Moreover, there are significant changes that must be considered in literature revision before moving on to another level of application.

Revisions should be related with:

- a) Avoid plagiarism;
- b) Present and analyse the impact of agritourism development in all available international and regional case studies with similar socioeconomic contexts;
- c) Introduce innovative approaches;
- d) Improve the structure of the paper (for example, the abstract is too long);
- e) Develop a detailed characterization of Zimbabwe at the geographic, demographic and socioeconomic levels. Additionally, characterize tourism from the point of view of demand and supply;
- f) Identify areas in need of intervention.

Good luck with your study.

