

Review of: "The Ancient Indian Knowledge System and the Medical Sciences"

Dani Sujana

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Overall the topics presented are interesting, but in the discussion section on ancient medicine it would be nice to be strengthened by the scientificization of current treatment trends so that later it becomes additional information for readers and becomes a reference in ethnopharmacological studies. It is undeniable that empirical data is very important considering that drug discovery was based on habits and culture that were inherent in society at that time.