

Review of: "Promoting Pro-Environmental Behavior for Sustainable Water Resource Management: A Social Exchange Perspective"

Gisela S. Córdoba

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article addresses an interesting topic about water scarcity in Iran and the challenge to management thus vital resource. The author has done an exhaustive background presenting the problem and the main objective. It is clear that this article contributes with value information about the underlying factors that influence individuals and communities, policymakers and stakeholders who could be involved in sustainable water management practices. This article employs the method of documentary research. Therefore, I consider it to be a publishable work with the following suggestions:

- 1- Objective: Which psychological and anthropological theories were used?
- 2- Method: Describe in detail the research method adding the sources of the rigorous documentary used. For example: selection criteria, time period, data bases, topic used, etc.
- 3- Discussion and conclusion: this section do not describe the findings from the article.