

Review of: "Attitude towards business activity risk: evidence using logit models for two groups of OECD countries"

Jaroslav Korpysa¹

¹ University of Szczecin

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Reviewed paper is an interesting scientific description which provides a discussion of attitude towards business activity risk in chosen OECD countries. Overall, the article is well structured and coherent and generally written in an appropriate manner. The abstract reflects the content and the purpose of the article is stated. I recommend some important improvement:

- it's not define exactly a gap of research in the theoretical part, still needs a literature review;
- discussion part should be improved, the results should be compared with others findings;
- in the conclusion not clear a hypothesis was verified positive or negative;
- the conclusion should highlight the theoretical and practical implications of the research results, the research limits and future research;
- there are some language errors. It is suggested to check the manuscript's linguistic correctness and refine the language layer. There are some typos, missing spaces in the manuscript.