

Review of: "“Healing is having faith in Allah, the healer, and the medicine”: An exploratory qualitative study of Islamic-based healing practices in Northern Ghana"

Sephora Mianda¹

¹ Tshwane University of Technology

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper is very interesting, well-written, and contains valuable insights. I really enjoyed reading it, and I think it is worth being published.

For the discussion, I would have appreciated seeing more on how the findings compare to Islamic-based healing practices from other countries outside of Africa, if such data exist. This may bring to light the influence of Dagomba traditional culture and beliefs on the Islamic-based healing practices.

Some orthographic errors:

1. The word "influence" in the following: “(for details on the influence of Islam on Dagbon and Dagomba, see Abdul-Hamid (2010a, b) and Imam (2012, 2015))”.
2. In the paragraph starting with “Gendered healing dimensions...”, please change “AS found...” to “As found...”.