

Review of: "On the Resilience of Urban Real Estate Development"

Fotini Kehagia<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Aristotle University of Thessaloniki

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The author analyze the concept of the resilience and its application to urban real estate development recovering from different crises, such as Covid pandemic. It is an interesting and well-written paper. Some considerations: The part of the article Resilience vs. Sustainability should be enriched by more extended literature review. There are many definitions in the two words, which create a type of misunderstanding. The number of references is quite small concerning this topic. The section "Resilience to an existential Crisis" refers generally to the ability of a city to recover from a natural disaster, without an extended literature review, and without the subject of the paper be analyzed clearly.