The objectives of the manuscript is not at all aligned with the title of the manuscript. Sustainable Development (SD) is a broad concept and it is one of the significant concept used in the title of the manuscript. However, the discussion on the role of women's business performance in promoting SD is completely missing. The objectives of the study indicates that this manuscript is more inclined towards the factors that determines women's business performance. If this study is mainly on the factors that determines women's business performance, then the author should work more on the literature review along with the theories that supports this idea. Moreover, the author should also work on the regression model. Must indicates which type of multiple regression is being used along with the justification.
