The article has no stated aim. The "Conclusion and future strategy" seem to be recommendations. However, since there is no stated aim, it is not clear what the conclusion was dealing with. The article should have a methodology. The article relies on legitimate data that was sourced. This should be stated in the methodology, and the procedure by which the coefficients of variation presented in Table 4 were calculated. A concerning statement is: "A higher potential for increasing animal productivity through the replacement of native breeds with improved animals".
