An interesting and current topic. Various and relevant literature was used. However, paper has several disadvantages. The title should emphasize that it is a comparative analysis. The abstract is not adequately written - it is too long. It is necessary to shorten it and highlight the goal and essence of the paper, what it concluded. The entire article is confusingly organized. It is difficult to follow the flow of the story. A completely new concept needs to be done. The introduction should introduce the topic and highlight what will be done further in the paper. This is usually followed by a literature review and then the methodology, which must be more specific. After the comparative analysis, a more detailed discussion should be done, which will be supported by scientific references. The work certainly has potential, with improvements. Good luck to the authors in their future work!
