The work has an important goal, which is to use visual resources on the theme of land cover by forests. However, as it stands, it is unclear as to its objectives and lacks a proper structure and logical sequence of ideas. Its structure is more similar to that of journalistic dissemination, but not scientific. There are few references on the topic addressed. There is no approach on the subject of reforestation or forest regeneration methods, object of the title. It is suggested a clear definition of objectives and structuring of the work, including important topics such as bibliographic review on the subject, detailed methodology, obtained or expected results, final considerations, bibliographical references. Although it has the bias of being an environmental education work and aimed at the general public, it must have an adequate structure and clear wording.
