

Review of: "Prevalence of Buruli Ulcer Among Residents in Jasikan Municipality: A Cross-Sectional Study"

Jânia Cristiane de Souza Oliveira

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is relevant, actual and clear.

In the introductions, the authors started up by contextualizing about the disease and its relevance for the location.

Methodology – the authors described in details the reality of the place giving us some awareness of it. They referred the Kelsey et al, 1996, but it is not in the references. It must be add it.

Results – something that called up my attention was the disability, it was really high. It would be interesting if the authors could analyze the disability together with age, occupation and sex, to verify the real disability impact of the disease in the residents of Jasikan Municipality.

Discussion – the authors could spend their discussion concerning their findings on literature. I suggest the Global Burden of Disease (GBD) to help you writing about the disability.