

Review of: "Exploring Historical and Contemporary Academic Disparities: A Comparative Study of Black and Non-Black Nova Scotians"

Manuel García-Minjares¹

¹ Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article clearly explains its scope; the effort to combine census bases from the end of the 19th century and the beginning of the 20th century is notable. In general I think it is a good job. I think it would be interesting to include in the discussion possible causes of this gap, and why there is even reversal in indigenous groups. I think that in future works, other variables should be considered, to better understand what is happening in the region. Greetings