Thanks for giving me the opportunity to review the article.

My suggestions on the manuscript

Introduction:

The description about diabetes in the initial part is basic and need not be accommodated in the manuscript.

Methods:

The methodology section needs to be described elaborately. Sample size calculation, method of recruitment of study participants, sampling strategy, how were the patients chosen from the hospital records is not mentioned.

Discussion:

The discussion section needs to be more enriched with comparison and reasons from other like wise studies. Like in self monitoring of glucose, cost and reluctance to use can be the reasons. Also, in the nutrition part, mention has been only about fibres. It needs to be described including all factors like consumption of carbohydrates, sugary foods; and daily consumption of calories.

The strengths of the study have not been mentioned. More limitations needs to be outlined particular to the study, apart from the cross sectional design limitation.
