I do not recommend the publication of this article for the following reasons:

Firstly, in the introduction section, the author has not delved into the essence of the research article, specifically the research gaps and the contribution of the study.

Secondly, I perceive this article as a weakly opinionated piece as it is not sufficiently supported by strong evidence from previous studies.

Thirdly, the "case study" appears to be more of a personal narrative. There is a lack of robust analysis accompanied by detailed explanations.
