

Review of: "Conscientious objection to enforcing living wills: A conflict between beneficence and autonomy and a solution from Indian philosophy"

Paola Chiarella<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Università degli Studi "Magna Græcia" di Catanzaro

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is an interesting insight into the moral dilemmas of the end of life. Starting from a case concerning the Covid emergency, the authors highlight the problems of the paternalistic approach and its fundamental principles. It is possible to find solutions that respect the autonomy of the patient while respecting the doctor's freedom of conscience by reading the question based instead on the ethical principles derived from Hinduism, Buddhism, and Jain philosophy.