The submitted paper deals with an interesting topic, especially for activities in port areas.

It requires a major revision to improve the precision in the description of the activities and results achieved.

As an example, I could not find the units of measurement for values shown in Tables 3-5.

In addition, the proposed technique is not novel, and a wider literature review is necessary, with a comparison with the results of the reported technique.

English needs to be improved. As an example, "employed" means a person having a paid job.
