Dear authors,

Firstly, I would like to thank you for your efforts in writing this article. After reading it, I would like to make a few general remarks:

Analysis and/or Experimentation: There is a lack of methodology, which is not explained. The outline should typically include:

1. Research methodology: This should explain the study's environment and the methods used to collect and process information.

In the introduction, it is important to provide an overview of the article's structure (the different sections).

Literature review: The discussion on this topic is very brief. It should provide a background view on the subject and be more comprehensive.

Results: Merely presenting article titles as proposed solutions to a problem is not sufficient. The data should be thoroughly analyzed and the problem should be well-defined using scientific methods. If it is a qualitative study or based on interviews, there should be more information and details provided. If it is a case study, an analytical tool should be utilized.

I hope you find these remarks helpful for improving your article.

Best regards.
