Hi,

I have indicated all my notes in the paper and uploaded the file to the system.

In general, the literature and methodology parts of the study are quite inadequate. For example, although the meaning of life is one of the main topics of the research, there is no explanation of this phenomenon. There are also some problems in the titling of the study. I think that the "Introduction" should definitely be included in the paper.

In addition, the "findings" are presented after the Method section, but there is no title for this section. Although the research has been successfully handled in the context of ontological and existential concerns, some arrangements are needed in line with the practice of scientific research.

Greetings,

Derya
