I have browsed through this article and I find it suitable for school students and 1st year undergraduates for getting an overview of higher education in the state of Tamil Nadu in India. This is not a research level article, but a narrative essay which also serves a purpose. If this is what the authors intended to do, I think they have accomplished the purpose successfully. On the other hand, if they wished to develop it as a critical journal article, then the perspective needs to be that of a critique. For higher education in India, I would recommend them to read my recent article: Khadria, B. (2023). "Post-Covid-19 India: The National Education Policy and India's Higher Education Trajectory," University of Pennsylvania-CASI-UPIASI Plenary Paper for Penn India Engagement Forum 2023: India after Covid-19: Recovery and Onward, January, 2023. Working Papers on Post-Covid19 India, available at <https://casi.sas.upenn.edu/upiasi/whatsnew> My regards and best wishes to the authors, Dr. Sarvanakumar and Dr. Krishnamoorthy.
