Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article addresses an interesting question in principle, the reaction of a productive sector to a protectionist measure, the prohibition of imports of its raw materials. The problem is that the measure was taken in 1986, almost forty years ago, so I suppose it has already been internalized by local producers.

Secondly, I am surprised by so many references and so few citations in the text. In fact, in the literature review there are allusions to works developed in institutions, but it don't include the corresponding and desirable citations.

Thirdly, the work is based on the formulation of hypotheses and their contrast using the chi square test. No objection, except that there are a multitude of steps that are unnecessary, such as developing the formulae in the calculation of the statistic and showing critical values associated with each level of significance.

In summary, I recommend that you, first of all, introduce a paragraph to better explain the moment in time and the exact circumstances in which you develop this work. Secondly, introduce the appropriate citations, at least in the section on the review of academic literature. Thirdly, present more succinctly the results of the hypothesis tests.
