My comments and suggestions were going to be redundant with those made by colleagues before me. I especially subscribe to Sabina Jordan's arguments; so, I refrain from repeating them.

I suggest completing the references block by including some of the most relevant ones from the following sources:

(a) recent scientific literature on studies carried out in the USA, China, Europe, various Anglo-Saxon and Arab countries, etc.

(b) proceedings such as, for example, the biannual international symposiums on "Violence in the Health Sector", in some of which contributions have been made on the topic of the article.

(c) institutions such as ILO (International Labor Organization), EU-OSHA (https:// osha.europa.eu...)-EUROFOUND (<http://www.eurofound.europa.eu...>), WHO, etc. who have dedicated important monographs to the subject. Examples

EU-OSHA. (2011). Workplace Violence and Harassment: a European Picture. Luxembourg: European Agency for Safety and Health at Work. Publications Office of the European Union. <https://osha.europa.eu/en/publications>
