

Review of: "The Effects of Greenery in Balconies of Apartments on People's Well-Being: Using Virtual Reality"

Mercedes Galiana Agulló<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad Católica San Antonio

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I think that the sample should have chosen participants with a more varied range both in age (the age range of the participants does not include children, adolescents, and young people, nor older people) and in educational level (all the participants had a university education), since these aspects can considerably vary an individual's perception.

Other possible parameters should have been taken into account, such as the size of the balcony, the presence of furniture, the presence of natural materials such as wood (also related to biophilia), etc.

All of this means that the results and conclusions can be considered too obvious.

Likewise, some formatting errors have been detected:

- Missing point in quote 14
- In quote 13, the period is before the quote
- 2.2.2. Questionnaire

The questionnaire was based on previous studies by Kelly J. Watson, which introduces (plural or singular)