The paper is extremely simplified and includes no rationale, no data, and no diagrams to defend the research. The structure is similar to a press release, it does not look like a technical document. In addition to not following the formal structure of a scientific study, the conclusions cannot be verified since neither data nor electrical and hydraulic diagrams of the developed structure are included. If the authors do not consider correcting and rewriting this paper, it will be impossible any intention to replicate the supposed successful results that could have been reached in another rural implantation.
