The article is not well-structured. Introduction and conclusion are missing, and the article core is not properly exposed.

The scientific research treated in the article, as it has been presented, cannot give a significant contribution to the knowledge already present in the field.

The article should be reviewed in its structure, presenting a clear conceptual path and structure, with a proper discussion about the results. Moreover, a clearer explanation about the innovation content should be carried out, emphasizing the improvements with respect to the actual technologies.
