This article is very interesting and based on broad knowledge, however

1. too many citations from one article for examples; 30 citations from Koohafkan and Stewart, 2008; 29 citations from Suhas et al., 2011; 9 citations from Elaine et al., 2013, and others.

2. Many citations in the body of this article but no found in the reference

3. This article could be improved its quality by adding many previous case studies and quantitative data to support real key conditions
