

Review of: "Navigating Complexity: Uncovering the Intricate Dynamics Between Intellectual Capital, Efficiency, and Performance in Taiwan's Banking Sector"

Karim Mansour¹

¹ Cairo University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors have done a satisfactory job in the research. However, there are some important issues that could be addressed to improve the quality of the research

- 1- This research requires improvement in the discussion of results section. This improvement should aim to assess the degree of consistency or inconsistency between the current study's findings and previous studies, as well as to rationalize the results of the current study in light of the pertinent and applicable theories related to the research variables.
- 2- The authors ignore testing the effect of the Covid-19 pandemic.
- 3- The authors should provide a clear justification for the selection of the sample period. It is important to understand why the specific time frame was chosen and how it relates to the research objectives.
- 4- There are relevant previous studies that were not taken into account.
- 5- Paper hypotheses need to be developed and improved considerably further.