Dear author,

Congratulations on writing an important academic paper. I hope my comments help improve your paper.

"Exchange rate pass-through" is too long for this keyword, a shorter expression can be used. There are many typos in the example below: "Tang and Lean, 2009; Karanassou & Sala, 2010, Olanrewaju, 2019". Sometimes the word "and" is used, sometimes the "&" sign. Sometimes "," is used between two sources, sometimes ";". All of these should be corrected throughout the article to comply with the journal's editorial rules.

The purpose of the study is not included in the "Introduction" section of the article. It is necessary to add the purpose of the study to this section. Likewise, the purpose of the study is not clearly seen in the "Methodology" section. The "Analysis" section has been analyzed in detail.

In the "Conclusion" section, only the result of the study is given. Discussing the similar and different findings of this study with the studies examined in the literature section may also add value to the study.

I wish you success in your work.
