This is an important article in the subject area, highlighting practical challenges that can be overcome with doable solutions that are recommended in the conclusions. It is well written and easy to follow.

The revisions that I noted in the first version have now been addressed in this revised version, such as clarity in the sample size.

The authors are kindly requested to make a final read-through for editing purposes. For example, on page 12, third paragraph, at the beginning of the sentence, it is written "in my study." Does it mean one particular author or reference?
